Infernal Night: Michael Quinn vs. Repairman Jack Heather Graham , F. Paul Wilson

In this short story from the thrilling anthology FaceOff, bestselling authors Heather Graham and F. Paul Wilson—along with their popular series characters Michael Quinn and Repairman Jack—team up for the first time ever.

Jules Chastain, the last surviving member of a wealthy New Orleans family, has a problem. And he's hired Repairman Jack to fix it.

It seems that Chastain “appropriated” an artifact from a fellow collector, Madame de Medici, and she wants it back. But the item—an ancient ring—is located somewhere in the family mausoleum and Chastain is too terrified of the wrath of his enemies to even leave his house to look for it. Meanwhile, Michael Quinn, himself a bit of an independent contractor, is waiting in the mausoleum when Jack arrives. And it's Quinn—whose day job at The Cheshire Cat curiosity shop in New Orleans has made him familiar with mystical objects—who tells Jack that they are dealing with more than just a ring. They're dealing with one of the Seven Infernals. Which means a simple retrieval job just got much more dangerous.

INFERNAL NIGHT is (I believe) the first short story collaboration between F. Paul Wilson and another author that pairs FPW's Repairman Jack with the other author's hero, in this case, Heather Graham's Michael Quinn, the detective half of Graham's Cafferty and Quinn series of paranormal (Quinn was brought back from the dead and Cafferty owns an antiques shop that deals in "unusual" items) detective novels. In this very short story (38 pages), Jack takes a case from a rich eccentric who flies him down to New Orleans (Cafferty and Quinn's home turf) on what seems a simple case, that he takes only because he's bored since Gia and Vicks are visiting relatives in Iowa. Of course, nothing is as simple as it seems and Quinn and Jack discover that they are both being scammed.

It's not bad, but it's just too short to be able to sink one's teeth into fully, regardless of price ($0.99). I didn't get any sort of feeling for what kind of character Quinn really is, or what it might be like to read more of the Cafferty and Quinn series. This is in sharp contrast to a subsequent pairing of Jack and super spy Codename: Chandler in the novella CODENAME:CHANDLER:FIX, by FPW, JA Konrath and Ann Peterson, that gave insight into both Jack and Chandler's personalities and modi operandi.

The best thing about INFERNAL NIGHT is hinted at by the title, and will only make sense to fans of Repairman Jack. For us, it was a lovely bit that filled in a bit more of the Secret History of the World long after I thought I had seen the last of it. That's about as specific as I can get without a spoiler alert.

Overall, just OK. If you're looking for more excellent, new Jack, try CODENAME:CHANDLER:FIX.

What A Mix!!

Repairman Jack, I'm used to but Detective Quinn I am not.. But after reading this I am definitely remedying that.

Both have been hired to find an artifact but this artifact maybe more trouble than its worth.

Great stuff by great writers.

Great little story

Has it all, mystery, suspense, violence, humour and a dash of horror. All in 24 pages, a great introduction to two very unique characters.

Fun short story that's part of the anthology Face Off. I'd never heard of either character involved before, but I enjoyed it. I'll be checking out Repairman Jack at the very least, and probably Michael Quinn as well.

Jack is brought from his usual New York City base of operations to New Orleans. He has been hired by eccentric collector Jules Chastain to retrieve a special artifact. From his own family mausoleum. No, that's not suspicious at all. Jack crosses paths with Michael Quinn and things take a turn for the weird. Little is as it seems. Will the two join forces or turn on each other? And what is Chastain not telling them?

This is a pretty good short story. This series makes me think of Warehouse 13 and Friday the 13th the series, ironically both having the evil number 13. That is just a number.

I read this a while back, as a part of the Anthology, "Face Off" (23 of the world's favourite crime writers bring you original, co-written short stories featuring their much-loved series characters.)
Infernal Night was written by Heather Graham and F. Paul Wilson (series characters Michael Quinn vs. Repairman Jack).

My memory is a little hazy on the storyline, but in general I did enjoy the complete anthology as I had read many of the books of the 23 crime authors. It was really interesting to see how the characters worked together from each author's series.

For your interest, the stories were:

Red eye / Dennis Lehane vs. Michael Connelly (Patrick Kenzie vs. Harry Bosch)

In the nick of time / Ian Rankin vs. Peter James (John Rebus vs. Roy Grace)

Gaslighted / R. L. Stine vs. Douglas Preston and Lincoln Child (Slappy the ventriloquist dummy vs. Aloysius Pendergast)

The laughing buddha / M. J. Rose vs. Lisa Gardner (Malachai Samuels vs. D. D. Warren)

Surfing the panther / Steve Martini vs. Linda Fairstein (Paul Madriani vs. Alexandra Cooper)

Rhymes with prey / Jeffery Deaver vs. John Sandford (Lincoln Rhyme vs. Lucas Davenport)

Infernal night / Heather Graham vs. F. Paul Wilson (Michael Quinn vs. Repairman Jack)

Pit stop / Raymond Khoury vs. Linwood Barclay (Sean Reilly vs. Glen Garber)

Silent Hunt / John Lescroart vs. T. Jefferson Parker (Wyatt Hunt vs. Joe Trona)

The devil's bones / Steve Berry vs. James Rollins (Cotton Malone vs. Gray Pierce)

Good and valuable consideration / Lee Child vs. Joseph Finder (Jack Reacher vs. Nick Heller)

Never read anything by Heather Graham but it was good to read Repairman Jack again. I think the two make a good team and it was nice to read about another Infernal.

Robin says

Liked this short story so much I am reading Heather Graham's first in the series, Let the Dead Sleep.

---

Nick says

Fun quick little Jack tale about one of the seven Infernals. Might have to check out Graham now.
