Die For You Michele Mills

Love, in a hopeless place.

Two months after a virus took out civilization, Rachel Donnelly is the last living soul in California, as far as she can tell. Until she runs into a Marine sniper, battle-hardened but alive and healthy.

Adam Sanchez would love nothing more than a slamming session of I-can't-believe-we're-alive post-apocalyptic sex in the back of his Hummer. But Rachel's fragility, inexperience—and much younger age—hold him back from exposing her to his raw, aggressive sexuality. If anything, Rachel needs protection. Especially from himself.

As they band together with other survivors to battle feral animals, violent ex-cons, and motorcycle clubs jockeying for power, Rachel grows stronger in mind, body, and spirit—strong enough to give the dangerously sexy Marine what they both crave.

The power of their passion rocks Adam's world, bringing him to his knees—which, he discovers too late, is the worst possible place to be when danger springs from the shadows.

Warning: Contains a sexy Marine, a tattooed ex-con, a girl who blossoms into a sexually assured young woman, laughter despite the pain, m/f/m ménage, hope, love, and more bad language and violence than are strictly necessary.

I really liked the first half of this book, but admit to skimming the second half. The characters were well written and it was interesting to read how they struggled against the backdrop of the virus-ridden world where few survivors exist. It's a solid start to a series if you like the "kink" involved. Won't say too much about that as don't want to give anything away, but it wasn't for me.

Damn, there were so many things I loved about Die For You but there were also many things that made me roll my eyes until it hurt.

I honestly couldn't imagine how it was possible Rachel managed to survive alone in that post-apocalyptic situation for sixty-two days. Really, she was so immature and incapable of facing the reality, it was almost hilarious.

What I loved the most was the awkwardness and palpable tension among all characters. Whether it was written like that intentionally or not, it felt real and appropriate for post-apocalyptic times.

I really liked this post apocalyptic book! The plot was different from the same old zombie books I've read recently. Pretty much everyone is killed off by a virus, like on the show Last Man on Earth. Instead of the threat being flesh eating zombies, gangs of hostile humans are what to watch out for after society falls. Throw in a hot romance and a small group of survivors and you've got an enjoyable read. Not as much action as I usually expect from the PA genre.

Sigh. That blurb got me all excited. A post apocalyptic setting with a hard, grumpy ex-marine. FUCK YES!

The blurb is the best part of this book. The heroine is an immature, whiny arse little bitch. Hello! Everyone is dead and she's moaning she can't have a 30 minute shower with hot water, or that she'll never use her mobile again. Never mind that she watched her family die along with the rest of the world. And the first man that comes along she's swooning all over the dead bodies. He is SO HOT. Look at that ass. Oh boy. He's so sexy. Please pop my cherry you big bad man. Hmmmmmm.

OH FUCK OFF!

I skimmed sections just to get to the sex, then started reading properly again hoping that she had matured a little and realised what world she was actually living in. Nope. She was still a child.

And here's something delightful for you - right after they find a woman being raped by two men they start dry humping each other, THEN go and fuck in the car. Yep.

This was a mess. I understand it was focused on romance, fine. But at least write a strong female character who isn't off day dreaming about tanned cock all the time.

To quote this book -

"Make like a sheep and get the flock out of here."

Eva Millien says

As far as she can tell, Rachel Donnelly is the last living soul in California until she runs into a battle-hardened Marine sniper that is not only alive but very healthy indeed in this sizzling and thrilling post-apocalyptic romance.

While Adam would love nothing more than getting very intimate with Rachel in the back of the hummer, her fragility and inexperience hold him back and readers can't help but get caught up in the unfolding drama as Rachel and Adam band together to survive. The chemistry sizzles and pops from the pages with lots of steamy heat with some very scorching sex scenes including m/f/m scenes and lots of emotional turmoil flows from the pages of this steady to fast paced and smooth flowing plot full of suspense, excitement, romance and strong, compelling characters that easily draw you into their story.

In this fascinating post-apocalyptic world there are very few survivors but there is lots of danger and excitement as feral animals, violent ex-cons and motorcycle clubs jockeying for power which has quite a bit of violence happening throughout the story which keeps readers on the edge of their seat with anticipation. The author brings her world to life with well written scenes full of vivid details that make it seem real and therefore easily holds the readers captive until the very end.

Michele Mills created a life like experience in her post-apocalyptic world that frankly gives it a chilling as well sizzling feel, I mean that the events and the situations are quite believable and made me question what would I do if I found myself in this situation. I really liked how she had the characters acting and doing things that someone might really do and not just the obvious ones, like go to the library for research, siphon gas out of vehicles and quite a few other small details that came together making it more realistic and I am looking forward to reading the next book in the series to find out what happens next.

Kelly says

Man, I like scenarios where plucky survivors are trying to figure things out without the creature comforts they're accustomed to and with danger looming on the horizon. To say this series fits the bill would be a mild understatement. It has all the glorious post-apocalyptic shenanigans I want with a side order of pending nuclear meltdown (possibly).

That said, yes, Rachel is often immature and does things without thinking through to the consequences. But it's what I'd expect from a college-aged young woman who has no survival training and little life experience. She does learn. She listens to Adam and starts working on making herself stronger. She might bitch and moan about it, but she does it. Eventually.

On the other hand, Adam is kinda jaded and set in his ways. He knows he can protect himself and Rachel and he has it in his mind that it includes protecting her from him. Admittedly, he's pretty possessive. He wants to call the shots and he doesn't think a sweet young thing like Rachel will be able to handle that. So he tries to stay away. Which doesn't last all that long, but I guess it's the thought that counts, right?

Survivors, a post-apocalyptic world with very few people left alive, danger, and the occasional threesome. I liked it. A lot.

I voluntarily reviewed an Advance Reader Copy of this book. This was an awesome first book of a new apocalyptic series featuring an alpha male and a seemingly innocent woman. I loved how the author threw them together and made them work together to overcome different obstacles. Definitely a great book.

I don't mind insta love if there is somewhat of an explanation, but this was ridiculous. I think the H dropped his man card in the field the moment they met, and he never found it again. She is the "student" virgin type, whining and fantasising about H (Who looks like Benjamin Bratt and Schwarzenegger) and he has nothing but sex on his mind.....can you imagine those two idiots actually surviving apocalypse

This could have been a great story except for the monumentally TSTL heroine. She completely ruined the book for me. 1.5 stars

Marie Brown (Marie's Tempting Reads) says

WOWZA! What a fantastic post-apocalyptic romance that is stunning, passionate, sexy, defiant, and with some super HOT guys that will make you glad to be the last woman on earth! I have been looking for good post-apocalyptic romances since Kylie Scott's Flesh series and I only found less then a handful since. I can now add Michele Mills to my list with her catastrophe series. This book happens to be the first book in this series so its a pleasure to have read and now, reviewing this first book.

The characters in Die For You are ridiculously amazing! And the plot? Hot Damn, its perfection! I absolutely adore these kind of plots because, lets face it, if a real apocalypse were to happen, we would hope men will treat women like they are rare and precious and for those with honor, they will want to protect us and cherish us. Plus the normal rules of society don't matter any more and ANYTHING is possible. And we get that in Die For You.

A HEART THUMPING FOUR AND A HALF SHOOTING STARS goes to Die For You by Michele Mills! It was a fast-paced, obsessive read that I enjoyed immensely and am now BEGGING for book two. An absolute DIE FOR book

**My thanks to the author for providing me with a free copy for an honest review**

In some ways this book reminds me of a book called The End of All Things by Lissa Bryan as it runs is a similar via and both are brilliantly written books that really draw you into the world left behind with only a handful of survivors.

The book starts off with Rachel, home alone after her family have died and wondering what she should do next. Then the book goes to Adam and continues in this vein so that we get both points of view of lone smart researched based female and alpha male who has lots of practical ability after having been in the army.

A close environment and very few other survivors lead these two to fall for each other as both do a push me-pull you relationship to begin with but find they cannot resist the inevitable.

The author creates a believable post apocalypse world where in many cases everything has to be started again like the nineteen hundreds.

I really enjoyed this book and would certainly recommend it to others.

Celestine says

Mediocre post-apocalyptic book where almost everyone is gone after a virus outbreak. Whiny, immature girl hooks up with alpha soldier with a dominant streak. But for some reason I liked these two all right, and both change for the better. More survivors are encountered, good and evil. Too many sex scenes tie together a minuscule plot, but I liked the touches like hitting up a university library for the 4-1-1. Not the worst I have read in this genre, and not the best. For some reason, though, I need to find out how Trevor does in the next book. Trigger warnings for assault, plus menage. Threesomes are never my fav, but I get to tick that topic off the Unapologetic Romance Readers book challenge list.

? I received an ARC via the author in exchange for an honest review. Thank you! ?

Oooohh! I really hope that we will see more happy endings for the rest of the men in this series.

Not saying that this book ends depressingly or anything. It ends on a hopeful tone with endless of possibilities to come..

After a strain of Ryuigi Ebola devastates humanity's entire population, only a few survivors who are immune or have managed to fight off the virus, remain.

With more men to women to count, Rachel finds herself a prize commodity and one of the last saving graces to what's left of the human race.

Now joined with a traveling companion and ex-Marine, Adam, along with a few growing allies in tow--- what will they do when they find themselves, or should I say Rachel, the prime target of envious eyes? And what happens when love, tragedy, and sacrifice edge their way into what could be the end of days? Will humanity's last survivors find themselves on the verge of going extinct or will a cure be found to raise mankind from the ashes and rebuild a civil living system once more?

Soooo...The first in its series, this one most definitely was my cup of tea. I've always LOOOVVED dystopian romances, and in fact, have in an "end of the world" theme kick as of lately-- so imagine my glee coming into this while getting much more than I could have bargained in the process?!! *does a happy dance* Die For You has everything from steam, grit, to unpredictable circumstances that will keep you permanently wondering what will happen next?

I formed a bond with all of these characters but the ones I'm now most curious about is Christian and what will become of him? His story was so tragic. Along with, cute little Josie--- ex-convict Trevor--- and maybe some Sebastian and Phoebe? Maybe?

Certainly, a book series, I will be keeping my eye on!
