Golbo the Spider's Amazing Vacuum Cleaner Adventure Faiz Kermani

Vacuum cleaners... What could be more dangerous? The threat from these evil machines had been drilled into Golbo the Spider at an early age, ever since his Uncle Snotkrunch had been sucked into one while going for a stroll after a family meal. Sure, dodging vacuum cleaners was Golbo's second nature, but one day something went wrong. Horribly wrong. And yet, Golbo the spider was about to embark on the most extraordinary adventure of his life...

As I was reading this book, a quote from the renowned philosopher, Lao Tzu, came to mind: To realise that you do not understand is a virtue; Not to realise that you do not understand is a defect.

An amusing tale of a spider with dreams of living on the beach, who ends up being sucked into a vacuum cleaner. The story is a fun read and emphasizes ingenuity and perseverance. And highlights the surprising aptitude spiders have for interior decorating.

Adult Reader Reaction: It is hard not to love Golbo and Spognot, the blue and pink spiders. The pages are a little text-heavy for new readers, but the illustrations will entertain young listeners.

Pros: Cute characters and wonderfully imaginative events make this a fun adventure to share.

Received this book as an advanced reading copy from the author :) thanks again for your reading my review. I sat down today with my Goddaughter who has started to learn to read. We both absolutely loved reading this book about the two spiders. We both thought the book had a fantastic story and was beautifully written even though it was a bit on the silly side but that's what got my God daughter reading. We also thought the book was very simple to read and very easy to get through and now my god daughter wants a pet spider like the two in the book.

I thought the cover was very well illustrated and colourful if I had seen it on the shelf in the bookshop I would definitely buy it. :)

The only thing I'd say as a recommendation would be maybe adding a few more illustrations to some of the pages to break down some of the texts for newer readers, and where you have some of the solo word lines like CRASH , SPLAT , WOOSH . maybe put them in bold letters and maybe in a different colour.

Best of luck with your other novels and hope all goes well for you :)
