Arrow of Death Michael J. Sullivan

Only a placeholder for now - but this will be the first book in the "bridge" series -- the books that take place between Legends of the First Empire series and the Riyria novels. This will be a standalone series and no prior knowledge of the other two series will be necessary to enjoy it to it's fullest.

For those who have read Riyria, these books will provide the backstory for Esrahaddon, Jerish, and Nevrik.

ANOTHER SERIES??

All of my dreams are coming true. May this never end.

Amara says

A bridge story?! I can't wait, just another reason to read everything again.

09/10/18 - And done! I'm really pleased with how it came out. I'm going to let it sit for a few weeks before reading through it one last time then passing it over to Robin for her comments.

04/30/18 - Back in the trenches! As I mentioned in my last update, I had to set this book aside to finish up copy edits on Age of War and make changes to the last three books in the series. Well, I finished all that up (about a week ago), and spent the next week doing spring cleaning and getting the cabin ready for visitors. Had a great time this weekend, but after being away from writing for so long I've been itching to get back to the keyboard and today is the day. First step, re-reading what I've written so far. Just got done looking over the first first two chapters, and surprisingly I didn't have to change a thing--a good thing! Gonna read the rest, then start writing. But I'm glad to be back to this new series.

01/03/18 - Second update! Okay, so I didn't make January...I'm about 50% through the book, but I'm going to have to put it aside for a bit as I have to do edits for the last four books in the Legends of the First Empire series. Copyedits are back on Age of War and I'm getting alpha read feedback for Age of Legends, Age of Death, and Age of Empire. But the good news is it's all outlined so when I do switch back over to this book, I'll be able to transition quickly.

11/21/2017 - My first update! The writing of this book is going amazingly well. Really pleased with how it's all going together. I may be able to get it finished up in January if all goes well. People who are interested in being beta readers can sign up here.

If this series is anywhere near as good as the Age of Myth series then I'm fucking ecstatic about its release.

In fact, if you look very closely at every single review I've ever written, you may see the words "Michael J Sullivan is our lord and savior" inscribed somewhere between the lines.
