Jocelin says

National Geographic never fails to amaze. The pictures are so inviting; makes you want to go out and get your passport and start traveling. There were amazing places here in the United States that I did not know even existed. It completely shows that there is such great beauty in our very own country. This book makes a great coffee table addition.

John Orman says

Variety of little-known but wonderful places to visit--mountaintops, wildernesses, islands, road trips, and historical sites.

I've seen a few of these 500 locations--
Dead Horse Point State Park, Utah
Haleakala Volcano, Maui
Yellowstone National Park, Wyoming
Australian Outback
Grizzly Bears, Alaska
Wildebeest migration, Masai Mara, Kenya
San Pedro Coral Reef, Belize
Umpqua River Trail, Oregon
White Pass and Yukon Railroad, Skagway, Alaska
Great Rift Valley, Kenya
St. Elmo Ghost Town, Colorado
Chaco Canyon, New Mexico
Bandelier National Monument, NM
Cusco Cathedral, Cusco, Peru
Georgia O'Keefe's House, Abiquiu, NM
El Rancho de las Golondrinas, NM
Metropolitan Museum of Art, NY
Victoria and Albert Museum, London
Central Park, NY--Birding!
Venice's Lagoon Islands, Italy
Tiber River, Rome, Italy

Saw many Secret Journeys I would like to make, though most of them are way out of my budget.

These Ghost towns are way off the beaten path:
Silver City, ID.
Bodie, CA

Maybe I will check them and their ghostly residents out on my next Secret Journey!

Mikel Stinson says

There are some wonderful places listed in this book along with great tips to find them. That being said, some of the "Secret Journeys" are pretty popular and touristy areas.

Tessa in Mid-Michigan says

Of course, I didn't read it cover to cover, but I looked at all the beautiful pictures. Lovely as all these are...

Jim Blessing says

This was a beautiful book to page through. It offered pictures and descriptions of seemingly hidden places throughout the world. I probably have seen maybe 10% mainly in the USA.

Mariah says

So many beautiful places that I now want to go to!

Sara says

Lovely book, but not one to carry on your travels!

Ela says

Awesome book! I was biased to look for entries from my country, and I was more than delighted to see Palawan in it. Makes me want to visit Mexico for its Monarch Butterflies, too!
