A Gentlewoman's Ravishment Portia Da Costa

"I'd love to be abducted and ravished by some handsome brigand or pirate..."

When the women of the Ladies' Sewing Circle share their private fantasies, some are shocked by Mrs. Prudence Enderby's secret desire. But Prudence cannot image life without such exotic daydreams--especially since they arouse her husband, too!

Yet Prudence never imagined she would actually be whisked off the street by a mysterious masked man who has his wicked way with her in a carriage. Taking her back to a boudoir appointed for pleasure, he continues to bring every one of her fantasies to life. But nothing could be more surprising than when Prudence finally learns who is behind this gentlewoman's ravishment...

Don't miss A Gentlewoman's Predicament, the first installment of Portia Da Costa's scandalous Victorian series, the Ladies' Sewing Circle, on sale now.

Lil' Grogan says

Ahh...I forgot about the mighty staff. How nice to have it pop up in a read again. I had more fun than I probably should have reading this one. But what can you do when there are hands paddling her feminine furrows and "happily glowing genitals"? And perhaps my favourite: "I feel him hard - hard as sin..." Mmm..3 stars for keeping me giggling for most of the book!

Mary says

Boring and predictable. Truly disappointed.

Kathy says

a noblewoman - Mrs. Enderby - confides and tatalates her husband with spectacular sexual fantasies... and he makes one come true with the help of the sex therapy house - to kidnap her (masked), blindfold her, tatalate her in the carriage; 2 men to undress and 'massage' her (though no touch to her vagina) - though when the 2 men make out she is encouraged to touch herself... brought naked to the master, still masked... he makes love to her with fiery passion, then uses a large ivory dildo, then makes slow love to her... then when she awakes, dressed, blindfolded, taken to carriage - to her husband (now unmasked) where she confides / relives every touch and feeling - leading to sex again in the carriage

Victoria Parker says

Great little spice brief from Da Costa.

This is one of four historical/erotic romance short stories set in Victorian England. It crosses the border into BDSM with one Mrs Prudence Enderby, submitting to an abduction and sex with dubious consent with her dominant abductor who whisk her away blindfold and using bondage has his wicked way with her...much to her delight, as she is being restrained and blindfold so she can just experience her titillating arousal and resultant satisfying orgasms without guilt.

I would recommend these short stories to those who enjoy both Regency and Victorian Romance and Erotica.

Portia Da Costa is a multi-published UK author, and here has produced an excellent representation of life, behaviour, language, and etiquette of society of that time. This was often a repressed and ignorant time in understanding women's sexuality by both men and women. Many contemporary readers will find it difficult to understand this in light of their knowledge, freedom and behaviour today but this is a good representation of how things were in 1880 when this is set. This is a series of Victorian Gentlewomen in their social setting of a Ladies' Sewing Circle enabled to discuss, explore, gossip and confess their sexual exploits to one another. I have enjoyed this edited and good quality story and rate it 4 stars in my opinion.

I just wish they were longer!

willaful says

It seems an odd thing to say about an erotic short, but I thought this was very cute.
