Wyoming Zane Gray

A certified classic by the master of Western fiction Zane Grey.

With cattle rustling on the rise in the cattle town of Randall, Wyoming, newcomers Martha Ann Dixon and Andrew Bonning join the ranchers in their fight to protect their livestock.

“Take this hombre’s gun, Tenderfoot,” the foreman snapped while keeping the rustler covered. Young Andy yanked the weapon out from under the man’s belt. “Now tie his hands behind his back.” The excitement made Andy clumsy, but he finally got the job done.

“Now take yore saddle rope and toss it over that there branch.” Andy was about to obey when he stopped, staring in disbelief.

“You’re not going to hang this poor devil?”

“Shore am,” the foreman drawled. “I’m gonna stop this rustlin’ once and fer all!”

Charles I Walker says

Fun reading

Fun story line. Entertains insight to life and fortunes made and lost. And a little bit of insight to how women and men think so differently alike.
