When the post office has donated a real mailbox to room 3B, everyone gets jobs as sorters, stackers, and carriers. ZuZu is in charge of the misaddressed, or dead, letters. But Harry discovers that a thief is using the mailbox for something other than letters. Will he sort out what's going on? Or will Harry deliver some horribly wrong conclusions?

Megan Miller says

When Harry's class gets a real mail box all the students get jobs. Harry's title is the facer and his job is to make sure the mail is facing the correct way. something wierd begins to happen and Harry must figure out just what is going on with the letters.

Misbah says

Horrible Harry and his class learn about how the mail system works and what happens to dead letters, letters that don't have a proper address.

Didn't enjoy it much.

Trevor Anderson says

i just read horrible harry and the dead letters. it is about room 3B getting a mailbox and everyone has to send poetry to each other . but then people are losing book marks but it turns out it was in the mail box the hole time because someone hide them.

Deborah says

Doug tells the story of how his friend and classmate Harry solves the mystery of the missing rainbow bookmarks. A cute read.

Grades 2-3.

Kevin Hemphill says

Okay as a class read. A students' choice not mine.

Ms. Manz says

Harry's class is doing a poetry unit in this book, just like us! I might read this aloud to the class so we can copy his class's project.

They also have a real mailbox in their classroom that they use to mail letters to each other - I think we should get one!

I'm going to put this in the Mystery box in our classroom. If you read it and think it should go in a different bin, let me know!

Sterrett Family says

Daniel: This book is among my favorites. I really enjoyed it, and have many books in the Horrible Harry series and devoured many of them.

Terri says

good read for the age group...interesting approach to the storytelling...the person doing the storytelling is not "horrible harry" and yet it is told from the first person point of view

Sydney says

its about room 3B is getting a mail box and they all have jobs so when Sidney writes a letter it gets in the dead letter box because he didn't put the name or the row number on it and Mary's book mark went missing a few days later Ida's and Song Lee's book mark went missing so they figure out that Sidney stole Mary's book mark to get even with her because she didn't like his poem then Mary stole Ida's and Song lee's to make her feel better then when Mrs.Mackle heard about it they both lost their jobs.

Shannon Rickert says

horrible harry isn't always so horrible i guess!!

Christie Rice says

This is another great book with a mystery for Horrible Harry. The setting of this book is in the classroom and the children are learning how the mail is delivered until someone takes some of the mail and it's up to Harry and his classmates to find out who it is.

Marlee says

My children (4 and 8) both enjoyed this book. The plot is lacking for an adult, but engaging for young children. My children especially loved the poems at the end and it started them writing their own color poems.

Anthony says

Doug tells the tale when Horrible Harry solved the case of the missing bookmarks. The case takes place in class 3B during the time the class had their own post office, and were learning about poetry and how to write poems.

K.C. says

"It was OK, not great." -K
