Book format information: My Master' Nightmare will be broken into seasons & episodes. New episodes are due approx. every 2-3 weeks until the season is complete. Each season will consist of 15 episodes. The author will publish a collection every five episodes.

Season 1: Episodes 1-5

*****

These books were soooo good!!! If you loved The Dark Duet, Escape From Paradise, Tears of Tess, etc., then this is your kind of read! This is not for everyone - it's quite descriptive - but it's my type of read. I couldn't put them down, and gave myself the goal of reading the first five before writing a review. It's an interesting concept which I haven't seen before - each book like an episode. The first 5 episodes were released individually 2-3 weeks apart, and then after they are all released, you could buy all 5 within one book, which is what I did, and I think this is how I'll proceed with the series from now on.

The general storyline is this: FBI agent Rita wants to infiltrate the slave trading Mafioso family (D'Angelo's) so that she can avenge her husband's death (he was also an undercover agent who had been killed when his identity was found out).

Rita allows herself to be captured by Jagger (Gabriel) D'Angelo, and she's imprisoned within the D'Angelo's family complex, where other family members live - Frano (Jagger's cousin), Alberto (Frano's brother), Bianca (Alberto's wife) and Thierry (Jagger's half brother). Oh, and plenty of sex slaves and and bodyguards too.

Rita gets to see the dynamics of the family's relationship, and nothing is as it's seems. I don't want to reveal too much, but there are more twists and turns than a Scalextric, and we get to see how everyone is the way they are. It's gritty, dark, filthy, raw, sexy, and I loved every moment (in a fucked up way!).

It's brilliantly written and without errors. There are several central characters, and the author gives them all their own POVs at various stages through the books. I feel kind of dirty and messed up because I actually grew to like a lot of the nastier characters!

I can't wait to see where this story goes, and read more from this author. The only downside is the expense of buying every book individually, and this is another reason why I am waiting until they come out in groups of 5 episodes.

★ ? ★ 5 BUCKING STARS! ★ ? ★!

Let me start of this review with a few gifs that give an exact interpretation of my reaction to the final scene of this episode.

When I say I am over the moon, I mean I am in outer fucking space type of happy right now. That ending - though it pains me to know what happens next - just made me beam. I never realised I was such bloodthirsty bitch but apparently I am and I am loving it!

I know Frano ended this episode feeling horribly sad and at war with himself for doing the right thing but the fucker made me the happiest girl in the entire world. Alberto, Alberto, fuck you Alberto!!

Okay, okay, I shall control my fangirl to get out my thought's on the rest of the episode instead of that bloody amazing last scene! :D

I have never been so mind fucked by a book before in my entire life. I actually think I say that after each episode I read but it can't be helped, this season is just jam packed with drama and multiple 'OMFG' moments that I cannot be anything other than mind fucked. When I process some crazy bit of information and finally wrap my head around it something else shocking happens and knocks me on my arse again. I honestly don't know what to feel or think right now. What the fuck did I just read comes to mind a lot.

This episode was utterly mental!

So much happened that it just constantly had me holding my breath. I don't know what else can be put into this series to shock us because I honestly think we have read it all so far. If I read any more heavy torture or just plain cruelty then I'm going to have to go to mass and straight into confession to cleanse my soul because holy crap so much pain is in this series.

I mean, how can Jagger be alive? His poor body should have just given out by now. I don't understand it at all. Then there is Bianca, my God, from the description of her beating in Theirry's - I'm adopting this angel! - POV HOW is she still alive? I mean, I was in pain just reading what happened to her it was that bad!

That type of descriptive violent and the m/m rape needs to stop, I'm getting a bit fed up with it now. I not condoning the female rape at all but Jesus Christ, I never would have thought there would have been so many openly gay men in the mob. It seems every other male character mentioned is secretly gay or openly gay. Nothing wrong with it at all but still, it's a bit much.

That little snag aside, Rita was the character in this episode that made me scratch my head. When her scene played out with Matteo I literally said what the fuck because she was very convincing with her words that I believed what she was saying wholeheartedly. The tables are flipped on Rita's 'lies' though because when a memory of hers is jogged it brings back her forgotten past and proved those 'lies' are actually the gospel (see what I did there?) truth. I bloody knew it as well, I had a strong feeling she was who Jagger thought she was. Yay me for figuring stuff out ahead of time!

Jagger is in this episode as well and again I completely feel for him, I just can't see him as the alpha male character that he owned in the first episode. He is ruined, utterly ruined as a person so much to the point that I don't know if he can recover. I really want him out of all the characters to get the HEA...well, as much as a person in the mob can get a happily ever after. He deserves it, out of everyone he is the one who is destroyed episode after episode, he needs something good to happen to him not only because I pretty much love him but because its inhuman the hurt that he has gone through without seeing some sort of light at the end of the tunnel for him.

Frano is up in here as well as guess what? My boy has got his memory back. Boo-to-the-fucking-ya! I'm liking Frano a lot lately, he has owned his alpha male status and done right by his family. He actually thinks about his family safety and does what is right by them which makes him the best fit for Don. He completely owns his role.

I have no idea where this series will go to next but bring on episode 6, I'm so bloody excited for it!

My 'hell fucking yes' quote:

"Jagger is no one's, you sick bastardo. And if you ever go near him again, I will hold you down so he can cut your cock off." - Frano

This review won't be live on my blog until my tour stop on the My Masters' Nightmare blog tour. My stop is on the 01/01/2014 and includes my review, an excerpt and....wait for it.... A CHARACTER INTERVIEW! Don't miss out on it! :)

First I have to thank Laura for making me a Marita Hansen junkie now! You are certainly back to your pusher status Laura!!

Holy Shit, I can't put this stuff down. I'm going to jump right into episode 6 and I'll be wondering what to do for the next 3 weeks waiting for the next episode. So if I start getting the shakes we can all blame Laura for my withdrawals!!

I feel like I'm reading the Godfather and Sopranos all rolled into one with a bit more no, make that a large difference.

My random notes have been:

Shit!!!!

I'm sorry but this conversation is funny.

WTH IS GOING ON?!?!

Oh I love Rita

Alberto I now call you Fredo

Yep, here it is again my favorite gif dedicated to Alberto

Jagger, this is what I believe for you and Thierry

Damn it this series has consumed me!

Georgia Cruz says

A contrast to Episode 4! This one got more action and hell yeah Frano is the best fucking Don! His revenge for his famiglia is making me want to hug him for his bravery. Revenge at its finest.

Meanwhile, Jagger is so helpless and I want to more than just hug him. If I only could take his pain and nightmares away.. He is beyond damaged and I don't know if he can be healed from that savage. Poor Jagger.

Chippy Marco says

I'm exhausted! This episode was intense, and the ending was fantastic. Finally! Though, it opens up more questions with Frano and how he will handle what he did.

That's what I'm talking about!!!!!!

Someone pass me a drink too!!!

I guess episode 4 was a fluke because this was every bit as twisted and amazing and sitting on the edge of your seat crazy as the first three!!!

Goodness, I can't wait to see what happens next!

Marita...

3 Stars

This story is incredibly dark and I'm getting tired of Jagger being brutalized in every episode!!
I want Rita to step up and pull some bad ass shit to get Jagger out of there.

I don't know how Jagger will ever live a normal life after everything that's been done to him.
This episode, Frano turns things around.
Rita even steps up her game but stupid Alberto always seems to have the upper hand.

I was happy to see that Frano is human and has compassion.

I still don't think it's realistic to have so many openly gay men in the Italian mob.
But I'm going with this since I'm five episodes in.
I kind of suspected the deal with Rita but it just seems pretty convenient that all of her memories come back when she's locked in that room with Jagger.

I'm seriously getting tired of the m/m rape.
It's not at all enjoyable to read.
Once was more than enough....it's pretty darn excessive in this series and that's one of the reasons I'm going with a Three star rating.

I'm guessing everything is not copacetic until the Padre, Matteo, and the Black Russian are taken out.

My reaction to Rita this whole book...

Why the hell is every guy (except Frano and Jagger) secretly gay?

I've got one foot out the door on this series but Frano keeps pulling the other one and I just can't resist him!

PLEASE DO NOT GO FORWARD WITHOUT READING THE PRIOR EPISODES

Review

This episode was one major drama scene after the other. It was very easy to get caught up in what was going on that the reader may lose sight of what this series is supposed to be about. I believe that there was too much action and twists to keep the reader stabilized on the premise of the story.

I was entertained but had so many questions about how scenes played out. Enough said about that.....and I know that Marita noticed what was going on with the series, so much so, that she contacted a few of us and asked our opinion and help with getting the series back on track.

Now, it's my turn to get up on the soap box and start my rant. I have had the pleasure of working with Marita on this blog tour and have chatted with her while she writes each episode as a buddy group and I honestly have to say that I have NEVER met any author who takes criticism as well as Marita.

She read a review on GR that I even cringed when reading and prayed she didn't see it or get upset about it. You know what she did? She got on our Group and said – “it was time to get the story back on track” How many authors do you know who can take that, learn from it and strive to do better? I know in my past with GR, authors can get nasty, flag and complain to GR, but it takes a strong minded author to “chew the meat and spit out the bones”.

As I step down off my soap box, I want to let all reviewers know that the majority of the authors do take what we write seriously and use that to enhance their future writings.

Recap

Rita Kovak

She is just all over the place in this episode. Rita is still held captive with Jagger at “The House of Whores” while the banter and sexual tension escalates between the two of them. Jagger wants to help Rita escape but she doesn't want to leave without getting Jagger to safety.

They have a run in with Matteo and Rita starts spewing out a twist on who she is to get Matteo confused and this gives Jagger and her the chance to finally escape. Just when Rita thinks she has everything under control with her mission for the FBI, she once again hits a road block. Not only that.....but something so extreme seems to jog the memories of her past.

We leave Rita locked in a cell at the D'Angelo house.

Frano D'Angelo

[image error]

Frano gets his memories back after Thierry runs to him for help after the beating Bianca took from Alberto. He confronts his brother and banishes him from the family. Frano is ready for revenge against the Donatelli's and he goes gung ho to get his cousin and Rita out of their clutches.

At the end of the episode, Frano is met with the greatest confliction in his life.

Jagger D'Angelo

Jagger is starting to heal from the torture at the hands of The Padre and continually believes that Rita is really his long lost love.

He is met again with Alberto in this episode and we start to learn how unhealthy Alberto's obsession with Jagger really is. With everything Jagger has gone through, the only thought in his mind is his own death and how appealing it seems at the present time.

Alberto D'Angelo

Alberto finally gets caught by Frano and is made to confess his sins against his family. Alberto easily comes up with more lies twisted around the truth trying to keep his allegiance with the Donatelli's in order to have his obsession, Jagger.

Has Alberto gone too far this time? What do you think is going to happen once Alberto finally meets back up with Jagger?

These questions and more are answered during this episode!

Padre Michael Donatelli

Must still be at the Vatican during this episode.

Bianca

Not dead.....hmmm? I wonder what the future holds for her after this?

Matteo

Matteo's one true obsession, Alberto still wants nothing to do with him and the little green horns are showing towards Jagger. Matteo wants Jagger dead so Alberto will reciprocate his own feelings. There is a confrontation between Matteo, Jagger and Rita that will have your jaw dropping to the floor.

Thierry

Thierry tries everything to get Frano to wake up from the drugs and remember everything that has happened. We do learn though in this episode that Thierry has very strong feelings for Frano and has been carrying a “torch” for him.

Wrap Up

Well, everything came to a head in this book and opens up a new direction for the next set of episodes. It only makes me wonder how Marita is going to continue after the MAJOR CLIFFHANGER she left us with this episode!
