I guess I'm getting more into money and finance books lately considering how crappy my credit score and reports are.

It's a short ebook, but packed with so much useful and practical information that anyone can do. You can legally change your credit report. Fascinating info like the credit agencies are independent companies, that creditors don't have to report anything, that skilled uses of the Federal Credit Reporting Act can in fact handle these guys.

She also gives stories from past clients and how she's helped them out. She has form letters and more info in links and a blog to help you through.

Personal writer with a lot to offer. Recommended.
