Orphaned at the tender age of seven, Jamie MacLeod comes to live with her grandfather on the wild but beautiful mountain of Donachie. There she begins to wonder what life can offer a mere Scottish shepherd lass. She longs to fulfill her father's dying dream that somehow she rise from her humble beginnings--the poverty and restrictions of her upbringing--to become a lady of distinction, to be someone in the world.

Jamie's quest for nobility leads from the land of her beginnings to the city of dreams and beyond. And while the lure of adventure and romance tug at her affections, the values she learned from the simple faith of her grandfather resurface to guard her. But will she ultimately discover who she really is?

A dream come true

This is a story about an impossible dream of a father down on his luck. A dream for his only daughter to become a lady like his beloved wife who has died. Set in an age and culture that strictly adheres to "class" distinction, this beautiful child cannot possibly climb from shepherdess to an acceptable lady in society. But with God all things are possible. God's truth and purpose prevail!

It becomes more clearer all the time about the Scottish blood flowing through my veins! I so loved the scenery, the lifestyle, the family ways in this story. Michael Phillips w J Pella incredibly reveal characters that come to life so vividly. A tender little lass who loses her mother, then her father, and upon almost reaching adulthood, loses her grandfather who finishes raising her. He teaches her about the Lord and simple life, but like her father, she has a streak to wander that worried him. She finds herself in some situations that might have turned dangerous except that God provides escape through people He has placed in the way. A wonderful read that brings out the nurturing in the reader...enjoy!
